Personalization matters—and the data backs it up.

When the pandemic happened, it made digital interactions between buyers and sellers an overnight necessity.

And despite this sudden change, buyers still expected a highly personalized experience from the sellers reaching out to them.

To find out just how important content personalization was during that time—and still is given that two-thirds of buyers and sellers say they prefer interacting remotely^{*}—we analyzed how our customers leveraged the Seismic Enablement Cloud[™] to personalize the content they shared, and the levels of buyer engagement they saw.

Here are a few highlights of what we found...

With Seismic, a piece of content can be shared via a LiveSend link rather than as an attachment.

These links capture engagement data, including how long the recipient spent consuming the content, even down to the individual page level, providing our customers with the insights they need to understand their buyers.

What are Digital Sales Rooms?

Digital Sales Rooms are secure online environments where sellers and buying teams can interact as frequently as they need to via chat, tagging, commenting, and video sharing.

The results are clear:

As the need for remote communication with buyers became a necessity during the pandemic, our customers dramatically increased their usage of our personalization solutions, seeing a similarly dramatic increase in buyer engagement.

Give modern buyers the experiences they want.
